Fairmont Hotel.

Staff place tent, s'mores, lanterns and champagne in room

ANNALISE KLINGBEIL

Gordon Relph didn't have a chance to go camping this summer, so when he booked a hotel room for a vacation to Edmonton, he made a special request.

"I asked the Fairmont, 'Can you do me something special? Can you put a tent in my room?'" Relph said.

The Fairmont delivered, and then some.

When the 27-year-old Calgary opened the door to his Edmonton hotel room on Friday he found a tent, lanterns, champagne, s'mores and even a note stating "open fires" were not allowed, but there was a microwave to heat up the marshmallow treats.

"The s'mores were delicious," Relph said. "They were the best s'mores I've ever had."

Relph, who was visiting Edmonton with his girlfriend for the comic convention, posted photos of the tent and treats on photo sharing site Imgur, where they have been viewed more than three million times.

Relph slept in the tent, on the bed, and said he was impressed by the hotel's willingness to accommodate his odd request.

"It's that extra step that (companies) take that people care about," he said.

It's not the first time Relph's unusual hotel room requests have been taken care of, photographed and viewed by millions.

In August, Fairmont Hotel staff in Winnipeg provided him with extra pillows and blankets, instructions on how to build a fort and a basket of goodies.

At the time, a spokesperson for the Fairmont Winnipeg told Metro Winnipeg that Relph's quirky request for a pillow fort wasn't that unusual.

"Oddly enough, this isn't a one-off — we deal with an interesting mix of clientele here and we get some pretty off-the-wall requests," Jacques Laverne said.

Bullying. Outers claiming they're now targets

Three Calgary-area women running a Facebook page created specifically to combat cyber-bullying claim they are now being verbally abused and have notified police.

Melissa Buck, co-creator of the "We are against bullying" page, said their actions came in response to negative comments and photos flooding the web after the suicide of B.C. teenager Amanda Todd earlier this month after years of torment and threats from a sexual predator.

In one instance, a member of Buck's Facebook group went so far as to contact the Toronto-based employer of a man over his hurtful posting about Todd, leading to his dismissal from the company.

But the group's actions have also drawn criticism — YouTube videos and Facebook pages have emerged specifically targeting the three local women at the centre of the effort.

"It's very ironic," Buck said, adding while she finds the threats hollow, one of her fellow administrators withdrew from the group entirely after insults began popping up. "I have asked everyone to please not target people anymore because of the backlash ..."

One of the men Buck specifically referenced as taking aim at her group is 22-year-old Maryland blogger Carl Sherburne. Reached by Metro Sunday, however, Sherburne claimed he's simply taking issue with the group's approach.

"I just don't believe that chasing after pictures of Amanda Todd that are all over the Internet is going to help anyone," he said, adding he's been in touch with bullying victims since Todd's death and believes helping prevent further tragedy is more important.

Edmontonians given a hand at Homeless Connect

Free services. An estimated 1,800 people take advantage of ninth biannual event providing a wide range of services

annalise.klingbeil@metronews.ca

Hundreds of homeless and at-risk Edmontonians got their hair cut, teeth cleaned and clothes laundered at the Shaw Conference Centre on Sunday.

Sixty-five service providers were on hand to offer help to an estimated 1,800 people as part of Homeless Connect, a biannual event that provides free services to homeless and at-risk individuals.

From immunizations to counselling, clothing, help with taxes and warm meals, the centre was packed with people of all ages accessing a wide range of essential services.

"When you come to Homeless Connect, you definitely see a lot of variety," said Susan McGee, CEO of Homeward Trust Edmonton, an organization which helps to manage the event.

"It really speaks to the fact that any one of us could experience homelessness."

While getting her long brown hair cut, Rosemarie Andruchow said it's important the community hold events for people who can't afford essential services.

"It's just absolutely awesome," Andruchow said.

As attendees browsed for winter coats, picked up diapers and learned about organizations that can help remove barriers to housing, McGee said many people that are homeless may not know what support is available to them.

"Everybody here has their own story in terms of how they became homeless and what challenges them in terms of maintaining their housing," she said.

Homeless Connect has been held twice a year in Edmonton since 2008.

McGee said attendees find out about the event through agencies, word

Committee. Altered parking hours could be downtown draw

Parking downtown at night could become a lot cheaper with just a minor tweak to the city's parking rates.

In July, Coun. Jane Batty asked administration to look into when evening parking rates begin, hoping to push them ahead to 5 p.m. from the current start time of 6.

City administration identified four city-controlled parking lots where the evening rate starts at 6. After doing vehicle counts and some estimation, they determined that moving the rate up an hour would cost city coffers about $80,000.

Coun. Kerry Diotte says he certainly sees the merit in making the change.

"If more people are lured to stay downtown based on something simple like this, then why not?" asked Diotte.

Diotte also raised the idea that the change would pay for itself if more people are convinced to stay downtown for the evening. "I think it is worth looking at."

The issue will be brought to council's executive committee on Monday. Any proposed changes to the city's rates would have to be introduced then.

from Star Wars brought thousands to the Edmonton Comic and Entertainment Expo at the Edmonton Expo Centre this past weekend.

In its first year, the expo has been more than organizers could have hoped for, says event director Kandrix Foong.

"We had over 7,000 people here yesterday," said Foong. "We have been able to show that we can get people through the doors, so now we can go after some of the bigger-name guys."

Jay Bardyla, owner of Edmonton's Happy Harbor Comics, says the expo is a great way to expose people to comic books.

"What we really want to do is try and capture the audience that is here for more pop-culture things, autographs or other shopping," said Bardyla.

He says Alberta is a hotbed for comic books and the expo should only grow from here.

"The province of Alberta is the largest comic-book market in Canada and has been for quite a while," said Bardyla. "More comic books are sold in Alberta than in Ontario."

Lebanon rages over assassination

Violent protest. Syria blamed for death of intelligence official

Lebanese security forces unleashed a barrage of gunfire and tear gas in central Beirut on Sunday to disperse hundreds of protesters trying to storm the government headquarters after the funeral of a top Lebanese intelligence official who was killed by a car bomb.

The protesters blamed the assassination on the government of neighbouring Syria and consider Lebanon's current government to be too close to that embattled regime.

Many also chanted against Hezbollah, the Lebanese militant group that dominates the government and serves as the Damascus regime's closest Lebanese ally.

As the battle raged, with protesters and security personnel pelting each other with hunks of concrete, metal bars and tear gas canisters, former Prime Minister Fuad Saniora appealed for calm.

"The use of violence is unacceptable and does not represent the image that we want," Saniora said in a televised address.

Even before Friday's bombing, the civil war in Syria had set off violence in Lebanon and deepened tensions between supporters and opponents of President Bashar Assad.

Sunday's clashes erupted after the funeral for Brig. Gen. Wissam al-Hassan, who was killed along with his bodyguard by a Beirut car bomb on Friday. Al-Hassan, 47, was a powerful

Cuba. Rumours of Fidel Castro's death greatly exaggerated

Former Venezuelan Vice-President Elias Jaua said Sunday that he met with aging revolutionary icon Fidel Castro for five hours and showed The Associated Press photos of the encounter, quashing persistent rumours that the former Cuban leader has died, was on his deathbed or had suffered a massive stroke.

Jaua also confirmed that the 86-year-old retired Cuban president accompanied him to the Hotel Nacional after their meeting Saturday, in which they talked about politics, history, culture and tourism.

Jaua showed a photograph of himself in a minibus along with the former Cuban leader, Castro's wife, a hotel executive and several other people. The photo shows Jaua and Castro smiling broadly, and the former Cuban leader is wearing a checked shirt and cowboy hat.

The public appearance was Castro's first in months. He has also ceased writing his once-constant opinion pieces, the last of which appeared in June. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Opening doors. Cuba risks mass exodus with free market reform

Cuba seems to be betting that its decision to allow most of its citizens to travel abroad freely will be as good for its economy as it is for its public relations.

The announcement comes as the communist island nation carries out a cautious free-market experiment to reform Cuba's economy. Among the measures is a plan to fire one million state workers and allow more entrepreneurship.

Cuba's leaders seem confident that lifting exit-visa requirements will not produce an embarrassing exodus. Instead, experts say, a controlled migration might provide an outlet for unemployed workers, and Cubans might return with experience in market economies.

Under the new provisions taking effect in January, Cubans may stay abroad for two years before forfeiting full citizenship rights; previously the limit was 11 months. Another provision allows Cubans who have emigrated for good the opportunity to apply to return.

45-year-old suspect in deadly rampage had recently been arrested

A man who had been accused of domestic violence and slashing his wife's tires took a gun into the spa where she worked and shot seven women, three fatally, before killing himself, a police chief said.

The shootings set off a confusing, six-hour search Sunday for the gunman that locked down a nearby mall, a country club adjacent to the spa and the hospital where the survivors were taken.

The chaos started around 11 a.m. at the Azana Day Spa, a two-storey, 9,000-square-foot building across from a major shopping mall. Haughton had recently been arrested after witnesses identified him as the person who slashed his wife's tires, police said. He appeared in court Thursday. A four-year restraining order was issued, and Haughton was ordered to turn any firearms over to the sheriff's department.

Fighting flares in Gadhafi bastion

Pro-government militias battled fighters in a former stronghold of the late Libyan dictator Moammar Gadhafi on Sunday, the fifth straight day of clashes that have killed at least 30 people in Libya.

The fighting in Bani Walid, some 140 kilometres southeast of Tripoli, has overlapped with the anniversary of Gadhafi's capture and killing on Oct. 20, 2011. A year since his death brought an end to Libya's civil war, Bani Walid is the most significant city in the country to still resist the nation's new authorities.

In Tripoli, about 200 protesters demonstrated in front of the parliament building to urge the end of the fighting, which they say is harming only civilians.

Iran keeps hope of nuclear talks alive

Uranium enrichment. The United States and its allies fear Tehran could quickly move to weapons-grade material

Iranian officials have made no secret about their desire to reopen nuclear talks with the U.S. and other world powers as economic sanctions dig deeper — with Iran's supreme leader even depicting his envoys as waiting at the negotiating table.

But Tehran's proposals remain essentially echoes of demands made during previous rounds of dead-end talks that tried to force the West into a corner: Whether or not to allow the Islamic Republic to keep some level of uranium enrichment despite worries the labs could become the foundation for an eventual nuclear weapons program.

Iran has signalled it could open bargaining over its highest-level uranium enrichment — now at 20 per cent — in exchange for step-by-step easing of sanctions and international acknowledgment that Tehran has the "right" to make lower-grade nuclear fuel. Iran also could push to expand the agenda to include regional issues such as the Syrian civil war against Tehran's key

Kuwait. Police fire tear gas at protesters defying ban against marching

Police in Kuwait used tear gas and stun grenades Sunday against anti-government protesters defying orders not to stage marches through the Gulf nation's capital.

Demonstrators were allowed to gather outside parliament to protest changes in voting rules for elections set for Dec. 1. But other groups broke away and staged defiant processions through Kuwait City. ## Guatemala. Soldiers' arrests mark shift in country's justice system

Protesting high electricity prices, thousands of unarmed indigenous demonstrators blockaded a highway in western Guatemala Oct. 4, forcing a standoff with police. Two truckloads of soldiers arrived and gunfire erupted, killing eight protesters and wounding 34.

What happened next was virtually unprecedented in a country scarred by decades of civil war as well as violence against its indigenous majority and years of impunity for its powerful military. Authorities actually investigated the violence, and the alleged perpetrators were arrested.

Within a week, prosecutors had detained eight army privates and a colonel on criminal charges. Two privates and the colonel could each face a maximum penalty of 500 years in prison for extrajudicial assassination while six privates could face up to 320 years each for attempted murder with intent. An accompanying report said soldiers had ignored police instructions to stay away from the protest.

Palestinian election officials said Sunday that voters choosing new local councils in the West Bank rebuffed candidates from President Mahmoud Abbas' Fatah movement in five of the 11 main towns, an apparent blow to the Palestinian leader.

Fatah had hoped to revive its flagging political legitimacy with Saturday's municipal elections, the first voting in the Palestinian territories in more than six years. With main rival Hamas boycotting the election, Fatah counted on a strong endorsement from voters.

In four of the towns where Fatah lost, including Ramallah, the seat of Abbas' government, voters preferred independent lists dominated by Fatah breakaways. ### PM vows to keep building on occupied land

Israel's prime minister pledged to continue building in east Jerusalem on Sunday, despite objections from Palestinians who claim the territory as capital of their hoped-for state.

Benjamin Netanyahu spoke Sunday after the European Union's foreign policy chief criticized plans to build 800 new apartments and a military college on contested land, which the international community considers to be under Israeli occupation.

"We are not imposing any restrictions on construction in Jerusalem," Netanyahu told his cabinet. "It is our capital."

A top aide to Palestinian President Mahmoud Abbas promptly accused Netanyahu of deliberately destroying prospects for peace.

The Israeli leader's comment "comes in the context of the continuing destruction of the peace process and the two-state solution," Nabil Abu Rdenah said.

Bans on the adoption of black cats at Halloween were commonplace until a few years ago, as many worried the animals

But animal-welfare activists say the dark-coated felines are proving they aren't as much of a target this time of year as previously thought. Now, at least two major animal-welfare groups are deliberately promoting the adoption of black cats in October, saying the furry felines could use the marketing boost.

Harnessing Africa's growth

Africa 2.0. A network of emerging leaders wants to rebrand the continent, encourage entrepreneurship and capitalize on stability

ELISABETH BRAW
Metro World News in London

In Addis Ababa, donkeys and goats graze by a street, with a Facebook and Internet café for a backdrop. There are shacks, open pits, garbage pickers — and young entrepreneurs toting iPads.

But Ethiopia is not the only African country with rapid growth. Last year, Ghana was the world's fastest-growing economy, according to the Africa Progress Report. Among the others in the world's top 10: Congo, Mozambique, Nigeria, Zimbabwe and the Democratic Republic of the Congo. Welcome to Africa 2.0.

"It's a very young population. That's a huge potential workforce. And, thanks to democratization and stability, many Africans are returning from the diaspora. These young Africans are better educated, too. And all of this attracts investors as well."

Toure, who was born in Senegal and grew up in France, is one of the founders of Africa 2.0, a network of emerging African leaders in politics, business and civil society.

Stability has led to impressive growth in former war zones like Rwanda, whose economy grew by nearly seven per cent last year, powered by tourism and exports of tea and coffee.

"Their economic growth is underpinned by policy reforms, the gains from diversifying the economies, growing exports related to growing international demand and rising commodity prices. There's no reason why the continent shouldn't sustain this positive development."

In Accra, the capital of Ghana, Vodafone is building shiny new headquarters. Indeed, a whole new Airport City is rising around the ramshackle airport.

Toure knows Africa's remaining challenges well. "Several years ago, young Africans were starting to move back, but Africa was still the Dark Continent, with frequent coups.

"Now that's changing. Young Africans want to rebrand Africa, introduce best practices, establish a vision for our continent. And we have to make sure our growth is shared. That's why entrepreneurship is so important."

Wave of brazen cellphone thefts in U.S. leaves authorities, carriers scrambling

In San Francisco, a tech-savvy city teeming with commuters and tourists, the cellphone has become a top target for robbers who use stealth, force and sometimes guns.

Nearly half of all robberies in San Francisco this year are cellphone-related, police say, and most occur on bustling transit lines. One thief recently snatched a smartphone while sitting right behind his unsuspecting victim, then darted out the rear of a bus in mere seconds. Another robber grabbed an iPhone from an oblivious bus rider — while she was still talking.

And, in nearby Oakland, Calif., City Council candidate Dan Kalb was robbed at gunpoint of his iPhone Wednesday after he attended a neighbourhood anti-crime meeting.

These brazen incidents are part of a ubiquitous crime wave striking coast to coast in the U.S. Thefts of cellphones — particularly expensive do-it-all smartphones — are costing consumers millions of dollars and sending law enforcement agencies and wireless carriers nationwide scrambling for solutions. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Patent drug makers tout research spending

As trade talks with Europe enter the final stretch, Canada's patent drug industry is making a final push to sell its brand of medicine to Canadians.

This week, Canada's Research-Based Pharmaceutical Companies will release three studies in an effort to show they have kept their word on research spending and that, nevertheless, the situation is getting dire.

One report from KPMG, which will almost certainly be contested by critics, suggests spending by the industry in Canada has been underestimated and is at about the 10 per cent level of sales it promised in the 1980s when the government of Brian Mulroney controversially extended patent protection.

The public relations push dovetails with the last scheduled negotiation session for the Canada-EU free trade agreement, where patent protection is a key issue. Talks are slated to end this week with the aim of signing a high-level deal by the end of the year. Europe has made nudging Canada to adopt its standards on pharmaceutical patents and data protection a key demand.

Ethical funds. Oilsands must reduce risk potential, investors group says

An international group of ethical funds with investments in Alberta's oilsands is concerned the industry's environmental performance could be creating financial risk.

"We recognize the economic significance of the resource," the group says in a statement to be released Monday.

"But (we) are concerned that the current approach to development, particularly the management of the environmental and social impacts, threatens the long-term viability of the oilsands as an investment."

The statement is signed by 49 funds. Some are controlled by labour and church groups, such as the United Church of Canada and the Canadian Labour Congress. There are also public-sector pension funds from both sides of the border and private funds from Canada, the U.S. and Europe.

Together, they control about $2 trillion, some of which is invested in companies active in the oilsands. Their statement was co-ordinated and released by the Boston-based group

Ceres, which works to advance environmental causes through the financial sector.

The funds say the oilsands industry is not reducing its greenhouse gas emissions or its water use fast enough. They're concerned about the lack of information on land reclamation liabilities and worry about lawsuits from aboriginal groups.

BREAKING DOWN THE COST OF DOWNTOWN ARENA & PARKING

URBAN COMPASS
Terence Harding
edmonton@metronews.ca

I wonder if there are 50,000 people in this city that would pony up $10,000 or more to build a downtown arena.

If that were the case, it would give the city $500 million to build it without siphoning off tax dollars that could be used to do all the other things the city must do.

Perhaps there aren't enough Edmontonians with that kind of available cash. But it is certainly within the power of the city to create a bond issue to raise funds. It could give Edmontonians first crack at buying the bonds and then float them on the open market.

I suspect that if the city rented the space to the Oilers and received all or a portion of the concession revenue, it would be more than capable of offering a reasonable yield if the bonds were held to maturity.

Floating an idea

It is certainly within the power of the city to create a bond issue to raise funds (to build a downtown arena).

I don't know the ins and outs of such an approach, but I believe it is worth examining. In the end, we would own the arena and all Edmontonians would benefit.

I like that a whole lot better than putting more money into the pockets of someone who already has more than enough dough.

As you may recall, it was widely reported that Calgary is one of the worst places on the continent to drive and it has one of the highest costs in North America for parking in the downtown core. On the face of it, that is pretty negative situation.

However, when one door closes another opens. In July, that door opened on Cars2Go in Calgary.

As I was walking around Calgary's downtown the other day, I noticed branded Smart Fortwo vehicles in some very desirable parking spaces.

After signing up for $35, you can rent one of these vehicles for $0.35 per minute to a maximum of less than $13 per hour. You can park them at a meter without having to pay and there are designated parking zones around the downtown.

I think what Cars2Go offers is pretty sweet and something Edmonton should give a close look. Given our winters and the cost of parking, it might just work here, as well.

As the LRT expands, more people will be coming downtown without cars unless they need their cars to do business.

The Cars2Go approach just might help reduce the number of vehicles in the core every day.

That would be a good thing. Yes?

That sweet tooth could rot your brain, study says

Bad news sugar lovers: A diet high in fructose won't just make you fat; it may also make you stupid, according to research out of California.

A steady high-fructose diet disrupts the brain's cognitive abilities, leading to poor learning and memory retention, says a study by Fernando Gomez-Pinilla, a neurosurgery professor at the David Geffen School of Medicine at UCLA and Rahul Agrawal, a visiting UCLA postdoctoral fellow from India.

"This type of diet... (affects) the transmission of information across cells... Learning and memory and practically any type of brain function depend very much on how transmission is transported across cells," Gomez-Pinilla said in an interview with Torstar News Service.

Research has already proven a high-fructose diet leads to a slew of health concerns, including obesity, diabetes and fatty liver.

The fuming animal, which had been clashing with other male elk, lashed out at tourists who had stopped to watch the beasts at Yellowstone National Park in Wyoming.

It is rutting season and male elk (bulls) are trying to attract the attention of female elk (cows) to breed with.

"In the process of trying to win over a harem, the elk battle each other," the photographer, Keith Crowley, explained. METRO

"In their heightened state, they will also attack anything they see as a threat to 'their' cows, including pedestrians and vehicles."

Wildlife photographer Keith Crowley, 51, from Wisconsin. Crowley said drivers couldn't resist slowing down to take a look at the gathering of around 60 elk one evening.

Elk

- Population in Yellowstone. They are the most abundant large mammal found in Yellowstone: more than 30,000 during the summer and roughly 15,000 to 22,000 in the winter. Elk have frequented Yellowstone for more than 900 years.

- Rut is a riot. During the breeding season (September to mid-October), bulls coat themselves in mud to 'perfume' themselves to attract mates. Bulls spar each other with antlers and cry out a series of low pitched bellows (known as bugling) to establish their dominance over a certain region.

The number of vehicles that were damaged by one bull, Crowley counted. The nature photographer said visitors are unaware that by slowing down their cars to catch a glimpse of an elk, they can cause an attack. "Despite an abundance of signs warning of the danger and park rangers shouting instructions to keep moving, most drivers simply slowed down," he said. "They appeared unaware that the bulls might actually attack their vehicles."

RuPaul gets revved up for an all-star Drag Race

Go big or go home.

Queen of reality TV brings former contestants back to avenge their losses and vie for top prize

Metro World News in Hollywood

After four seasons of fierce competition — with a fiercely loyal cult following — drag superstar RuPaul is giving 12 former contestants another shot at glory with RuPaul's All Stars Drag Race. But don't expect the outspoken host and judge to admit to any favourites.

So what's new on the show this season?

Well, obviously we have the all-stars, who are basically the Avengers of drag. These are the biggest and the best. They are avenging the fact that these are the girls who did not win the top prize, so they've got something to prove. Even the weakest competitor has an incredible story to tell, because these are kids who come from backgrounds where they've been ostracized and shut out, and they've persevered. We all live in a patriarchal, masculine culture, and doing this kind of work, to go against the grain like this, is nothing short of heroic.

Do you have any favourites among the all-stars?

I'm the mommy, I cannot play favourites. Of course I have favourites, but I can't tell anybody (laughs). I have the best job in the world. I've always loved queens. I've always loved people who dance to the beat of a different drummer, and I've found myself in the best job in the world... I love creativity. I love to take something apart and rebuild it and see what makes it work. And when we're producing this show, before the cameras roll, we're putting together an ensemble of creative people to be our competitors, but we're also putting together these challenges that are really kind of life challenges in disguise — wrapped up in pretty, funny packages. So I love being creative, and that's what this job allows me to do. And also I get to usher these incredible entertainers into the big time, because our show is seen in 25 different countries around the world, so they become world-famous. Even the girl who's eliminated first becomes world-famous.

What do you think Canadian audiences are going to get out of it?

Well, they're going to get a whole lot of American attitude from queens who basically really are the tastemakers and phrase-makers of the world. When I was growing up, gay people were the arbiters of

Songstress' Chinese heritage has helped build her success in Canada

Wanting to sing. Just shy of one million hits on YouTube, Wanting Qu's song Drenched combines her penchant for music and her business smarts

When she was last in China, Wanting Qu remembers standing outside her apartment, chatting idly with her makeup artist. The singer didn't notice the paparazzo surreptitiously snapping photos of the exchange, but she sure noticed the next day when the pictures were published alongside a fabricated story about the innocuous conversation.

Contrast that incident with the scene in Toronto on Friday, when Wanting was led through a short photoshoot in a small downtown park. As she comfortably cycled through a series of well-practised poses, locals ate lunch less than a metre away, cheerfully oblivious.

Such is life for the 28-year-old, who first moved to Canada at age 16. She came here to earn a business degree, but wound up discovering her passion for music. Now a star in Asia, she's able to remain relatively anonymous in her adopted home, and that's fine by her.

"I think when I want to write, and be focused, and just live life and feel emotion and normal things, (Canada) does that for me," said Wanting,

Chinese-Canadian singer/songwriter Wanting Qu is a star in China and is rising in Canada. CANADIAN PRESS clad in a leather jacket and snug trousers, her wavy black hair wrapped over one shoulder.

"Although not at my shows. My shows are still crazy."

Freshest in her mind is a gig Thursday at Toronto's Mod Club, which sold out a month prior. She raves about the enthusiastic crowd but notes that she's still feeling the effects, yawning and lamenting all the four-or-five-hour sleeps she's endured lately.

To put it lightly, it's been a busy few months for Wanting (whose English handle is a phonetic amalgam of her Chinese names). She released her debut full-length album

Everything in the World back in April. It's now approaching triple platinum status in China, while racking up similarly ample sales in Hong Kong and Malaysia.

While she's still developing her audience in North America, this is where she found her sound. When she moved to Canada (first to the Toronto area before settling in Vancouver, in part due to the relatively harsher Ontario winters), she was fairly well-versed in pop but knew nothing of other genres, like blues, jazz and alternative rock.

Here, she fronted a rock band for a while and fell in love with the work of several Canadian artists — most notably, fellow Vancouver resident Sarah McLachlan. In 2005, still a student, Wanting scraped together enough money to buy a keyboard. She'd always been blessed with a full and precise voice, but she had never tried to write a song before. Her first was about an ex-boyfriend, and still many of her lovelorn tunes centre on relationships.

"That was the starting point of me trying to express myself through music," she said.

She had left China in part to escape the watchful gaze of her strict mother, but pursued the pragmatic business degree to appease her all the same.

That economic acumen

McBride, who once steered the careers of McLachlan, Avril Lavigne and the Barenaked Ladies. Wanting eventually persuaded McBride to sign her and spend years collaborating on what would become her debut album.

Still, Wanting herself wasn't sure how much of an audience awaited her. She notes that she's something of an anomaly in China, where it's somewhat unusual for an artist to play instruments and write her own songs.

So when she posted a hastily recorded video of her performing her lovesick piano ballad Drenched in her Vancouver apartment to YouTube in 2010, she had low expectations.

"I was thinking, 'OK, maybe when I come back to this video in a long time, I'll probably get a thousand hits?'"

Yann Martel says the Life of Pi novel and movie should be judged on their own merits. JAKE NETTER/THE CANADIAN PRESS

'Remarkably versatile director' brings Life of Pi to the big screen

Another Ang Lee epic.

As close as Lee came to the original novel, Martel was prepared for the book's meaty plot to be trimmed

A lot of people thought the epic novel Life of Pi could never be made into a movie. It was too complex, too surreal. And then there's the whole idea of sticking an actor in a boat with a man-eating tiger for a good chunk of the film.

Yann Martel, however, says he thinks director Ang Lee did a pretty good job of pulling it off.

"It's very faithful to the book, it's visually absolutely stunning and it's a whole trip," the Canadian author said in an interview as people lined up to see the film version of his novel at Montreal's Festival du nouveau cinéma over the weekend.

The movie will open across Canada next month.

Life of Pi, which has sold millions of copies worldwide since it was published in 2001, counts U.S. President Barack Obama among its fans. In a letter to Martel two years ago, Obama described the 2002 winner of the prestigious Man Booker Prize as "a lovely book — an elegant proof of God, and the power of storytelling."

But most filmmakers shrank from adapting it for the big screen after it was published. Even Martel acknowledges the dense plot has enough material for multiple movies.

Then came Lee, who was undaunted. Taking it on four years ago, he tackled the compelling adventure story of an Indian boy named Pi who is shipwrecked with a ferocious Bengal tiger, and combined the tale with cutting edge 3D technology. The technology works with the film's stunning

The computer-generated tiger is indistinguishable from the real thing. It even had members of the Montreal audience jumping in their seats when the hulking beast snarled and lunged.

Life of Pi, which premiered at the New York Film Festival in September, goes into wider release on Nov. 21.

Victoria Justice has some Fun with Halloween film

Confusing Cleveland. Ohio residents were thrown for a loop by Fun Size set, according to young actress

scene@metronews.ca

For the people of Cleveland, Ohio, the shooting of the new comedy Fun Size was a surreal experience.

"It was really funny that we were filming this movie in the dead summer, hot and humid in Cleveland, when it was supposed to be October," said the movie's star, Victoria Justice.

"People that lived in Cleveland, normal people who weren't in the movie, got confused when they would drive by us and see all these Halloween decorations."

But Halloween decorations in July weren't the only tricky aspect of the shoot for Clevelanders.

"Captain Chicken, where all the mayhem starts to happen," she says "is obviously a fake fast-food chain, but people in Cleveland were actually signing up to try and work there. So that was hilarious."

"They were sending in job applications and we were like, 'Too bad this is going to be knocked down in two days!'"

The 19-year-old Justice has been performing since age 10, first making a name for herself on Nickelodeon shows like Zoey 101 before headlining her own comedy show Victorious.

She's the first to admit that Fun Size's story of an out of control Halloween night is something a little different for her longtime fans.

"I have a feeling they're really going to like it," she says.

"It is PG13, so I think teens and adults can enjoy it together. I think younger kids, if their parents let them see it, are really going to like it because it is a little naughty in parts."

The script's edge is what drew her to the project.

"I liked that it was a bit edgier than the scripts I had been reading and I loved that it was something different, that it was a unique concept."

Fun Size, which opens Friday, represents a turning point in her career, moving away from the kid stuff that made her a star and transitioning to a young adult star, but she's not stopping at movies and TV.

She says she wants to do more film, but is also concentrating on music career.

"I am also writing my own music," she says.

"I think I'm kind of creating my own sound, following my own path.

I'm writing about things I relate to or that I've experienced.

"I'm not sure what it will sound like exactly.

"I think it will fall under the genre of pop music but I'm not doing death metal or anything."

Hedren was The Girl Hitchcock showed his dark side to

Revealing new film. Talented but often nasty director made life hell for The Birds' actress, but she handled it with aplomb

After a private screening of HBO's The Girl held for Tippi Hedren, her friends and family, including daughter Melanie Griffith, the reaction was silence. Make that stunned silence, as the room took in the film's depiction of a scorned, vindictive Alfred Hitchcock physically and emotionally abusing Hedren during production of The Birds.

"I've never been in a screening room where nobody moved, nobody said anything," Hedren recounted. "Until my daughter jumped up and said, 'Well, now I have to go back into therapy.'"

Hedren, 82, as polished and lovely as she was taking her turn as a rarified "Hitchcock blonde" in The Birds (1963) and Marnie (1964), tells the story with a casual smile.

But her experience with Hitchcock, as detailed in The Girl, is as jarring to watch as one of the master's own dark suspense dramas. Sienna Miller (Lager Cake, Factory Girl) plays model-turned-actress Hedren, with Toby Jones (The Hunger Games, Infamous) as Hitchcock.

In one horrific sequence, the filmmaker withholds from Hedren that real birds, not mechanical ones, will be used in a scene in which she'll be attacked at close quarters. Then he subjects her to five days of shooting, take after take, leaving her injured and distraught.

A physician forced

Hitchcock to suspend production for a week to allow Hedren to recover.

"Hitch said we had to keep filming," the actress recalled. "The doctor said, 'What are you trying to do, kill her?'" Hedren, who regrouped and worked with the British filmmaker again on Marnie, said the HBO film shows only a slice of what was also a rewarding period and relationship.

"There wasn't time to show the wonderful people I met, the wonderful discussions Hitch and I had, the great gift he gave me being not only my director but my drama coach," she said. But she lost her admiration for the man, if not the artist, when Hitchcock punished her for rebuffing his advances.

"I think we're dealing with such a devious mind, one of genius, of incredible creativity," she said, adding, "there is so much wrong with that mind. ... He was evil."

With the pair's irrevocable rift after Marnie, Hitchcock refused to let her out of the seven-year contract she'd signed. That allowed him to quash her shot at other big films, including Francois Truffaut's Fahrenheit 451 in 1966, Hedren said.

She insists, credibly, that she's never played the what-if game. While she couldn't capitalize on being a hot property post-Hitchcock, Hedren channeled her energies into family and her dedication to helping animals, including founding the Shambala wildlife preserve in Southern California. "He ruined my career, but he didn't ruin my life," said Hedren, who has worked regularly in TV and appeared in some films.

think it was sexual. There was something so beautiful and radiant about her that he worshipped her," the actor said.

Jones cautioned against making one chapter into a biography: "We're not saying this is Hitchcock. This is a section of Hitchcock's life based on verified, carefully researched facts." Director Julian Jarrold said Hitchcock biographer Donald Spotto, along with Hedren, were the main sources for screenwriter Gwyneth Hughes. Hitchcock died in 1980 at age 80.

Hedren, who offered high praise for Jones, Miller and The Girl, said she never discussed Hitchcock's behaviour with his other famous leading ladies, who included her friend, Kim Novak (Vertigo), Eva Marie Saint (North by Northwest) and Grace Kelly (Dial M for Murder, Rear Window and To Catch a Thief). She first brought herself to talk about it two decades afterward, Hedren said, and she's now counting on The Girl to carry her story further.

"I hope that young women who do see this film know that they do not have to acquiesce to anything that they do not feel is morally right or that they are dissatisfied with," she said. "I can look at myself in the mirror and I can be proud. I feel strong. And I lived through it beautifully."

Billy Ray Cyrus. Miley's loving dad gets 'pretty dang personal' on new album Change My Mind

Billy Ray Cyrus sums up his new album in the true spirit of a country artist.

"It's pretty dang personal," the Kentucky native said of Change My Mind, which hits stores in Canada on Monday.

Of course, that's nothing new for the famed Achy Breaky Heart singer/songwriter/actor, who's sold more than 25 million albums worldwide. Several of his 13 studio releases have delved into his life, including 1992's smash Some Gave All. That album was certified multi-platinum nine times in the U.S. and spawned Achy Breaky Heart, as well as a line dancing and Cyrus-style mullet craze.

"But this is right up there. This is an extremely personal album," a mullet-free Cyrus noted with his twang in a recent interview.

Cyrus, 51, said he was driven by "the pure love of making music" for Change My Mind, which was recorded over about six months in California with Grammy-nominated and multi-Juno Award-winning producer Brandon Friesen.

"For me, as a songwriter, I'll never paint the Mona Lisa, but I don't have any desire to. I'm a simple guy from eastern Kentucky that writes about simple things and I don't really try to say it in a fancy way just because I don't know that."

The tunes combine all of Cyrus's influences, "from bluegrass to outlaw country to southern rock to swamp rock," he said. "Just core, southern rock, honky tonk, stompin'-good-time-music."

But Cyrus's lyrics also indicate he needed to get some heavy feelings off his chest. On the first single, the banjo and fiddle infused country-rock title track, he croons about backtracking on a decision to leave a loved one. The song seems to allude to Cyrus's decision last year to withdraw his divorce filing and reconcile with his wife, Tish — a topic that a publicist warned was off-limits during his recent swing through Toronto. The couple has five children, including actress/pop star Miley Cyrus, who starred with her dad on the medical drama Doc and the hit Disney Channel series Hannah Montana.

Tomorrow Became Yesterday and Good As Gone also touch on lost love, while the ballad That's What Daddys Do (which is the spelling Cyrus went with on the liner notes) has him ruminating on his family. Cyrus joked that if he writes a couple more tunes on fatherhood, he'll "have a whole daddy album one of these days."

"Somewhere along the line I became, for a lot of kids around the world, some image of their daddy, America's daddy or the world's daddy or whatever I was on Hannah Montana," he surmised.

"And that song Ready, Set, Don't Go, every single day I'll read a letter from a daddy somewhere that's either played the song at his little girl's wedding or a couple of days ago I read about a daddy that took his daughter that had enlisted in the army and they played Ready, Set, Don't Go as she was leaving," Cyrus said he isn't sure if he'd perform the tune at 19-year-old Miley's wedding, though. (In June, she and 22-year-old actor Liam Hemsworth announced their engagement.)

The whole family is "really happy" and the couple is "taking it one step at a time" with the wedding planning, he said. "Both Liam and Miley are both so busy right now, so whenever that is, I have plenty of daddy songs just in case they need one." Cyrus predicted Miley might want him to perform Stomp, though, noting that's her favourite tune from his new album.

Cyrus plans to perform in the Broadway musical Chicago this winter. He said he doesn't do much dancing in the show, mostly singing. "They're going to surround me with a bunch of young, beautiful people, so I'll just be the old man in the middle trying to keep up and know my lines."

Packing

perfectIT'S ALL RELATIVE
Kathy Buckworth,
kathybuckworth.com

Family travel can be a lot of work, particularly if parents are responsible with not only packing for themselves, but for their kids as well.

Inevitably, when you reach your destination, at least one of the kids will pull a T-shirt out of their suitcase and say, "I'm not wearing this."

Put your kids in charge of their own suitcases. Teaching your kids to pack for themselves not only takes the stress off mom and dad, but it trains them to be responsible for their own belongings, which is invaluable as they grow up and head off to summer camp, sleepovers and eventually post-secondary education.

Even young kids who can't read can do their own packing. Give them a list using pictures of what they need to pack, and if you want a specific T-shirt or pair of pants, make them the right colour.

When they're older, help them create their list or at least describe what types of clothes you think they'll need for the different activities they'll be doing.

They'll learn how to avoid not packing enough and over-packing. If they forget something, it'll be a great lesson to take more care the next time.

Kitchen lessons. Food Network chef Dale MacKay shares his tips on getting your kids to eat — and love — what you pack for them

life@metronews.ca

It's almost the end of October and they're still brining home uneaten sandwiches?

Vancouver-based chef and Top Chef Canada Season One winner, Dale MacKay, offers his tips on getting kids of all ages inspired in the home kitchen and what you should be popping into your kids' lunch boxes.

When you were young, what was your favourite thing to have for lunch?

A good peanut butter and jelly sandwich, some fruit and some yogurt!

Now, as an adult, what's the most important thing to remember when assembling a lunch for your son, Aydan?

Try to hit all the food groups. Pack some raw vegetables, fruit. If you're going to go (with) a snack, then choose good quality granola bars that don't have a lot of sugar.

Does your son help make lunch/spend time in the kitchen with you?

He's starting to a lot more now. We cook dinners at home a lot ... I try to involve him way more often. Whether Aydan's cutting vegetables, pan frying or whatever it is, he's getting a lot more at ease.

What's a great fundamental

Chef Dale MacKay and his son Aydan. SUBMITTED

cooking process or meal to start with when getting kids involved in the kitchens?

Chopping (ingredients) with you. Whatever you're cutting, whether it's celery or carrots, you can snack on it while you're cutting and explain why we're doing something a certain way, why you're using something ... why the process is the way it is.

Any tips on how to get a kid to eat a fruit/vegetable they don't like?

That's hard. Some kids certainly don't love fruits and vegetables ... but, take apples (for example) and go through different varieties of them. If you give a child a Granny Smith apple, he may never want to eat one again because they're so tart. If you get a Pink Lady apple, it's sweeter. That's what I did with Aydan and now he loves them so much.

As a parent, what's one junk food/fast food item you hate to see kids eating?

Too much candy! I rarely ever purchase anything that's straight sugar. I don't ever really give Aydan pop, so he doesn't crave it because he hardly ever gets it.

Kitchen Tips

Here are Dale's tips for getting kids of all ages involved in the kitchen.

- Young children (5 - 8). Bring them grocery shopping with you and ask for their help while making a meal.
- Tweens (9 - 12). Watch the Food Network with them and check out online cooking videos.
- Teenagers (13 - 18). Take them to an array of restaurants and search out different flavours found in ethnic cuisines. Then assign one night a week for them to cook.

PB & J sandwich makeover

Most kids — and many adults who want to remember being kids — love peanut butter and jelly sandwiches. Problem is, this childhood staple is high in fat and sugar. So it's time for a remake of that beloved sandwich.

The first fix is the bread. Skip the fluffy white bread and go straight to a multigrain or whole wheat.

The second fix is the jelly. Even the healthiest varieties are jammed with sugar. So start with a base of all-fruit spread, but add a healthy dose of real fresh berries. This gives the sandwich just the right touch of sweetness.

The final trouble spot in the typical PB&J is the peanut butter. Opting for a natural, unsweetened peanut butter gets

Updated Peanut Butter and Jelly Sandwich

This recipe serves one. MATTHEW MEAD/ THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ingredients

- 1 tbsp instant oatmeal
- 3 tbsp non-fat milk
- Pinch salt
- 1 tbsp natural unsalted peanut butter
- 1/4 cup chopped fresh berries
- 2 tsp all-fruit spread
- 2 slices multigrain or whole-wheat bread

you on the right track. But even regular peanut butter is loaded with fat. So you want to use it sparingly. But that doesn't taste nearly as good as really loading it on.

The solution? Mix together peanut butter and cooked instant oatmeal. Crazy? Maybe a little. But oatmeal has a nutty, pasty quality to it already. Mixed with peanut butter, it makes a delicious sandwich filling. Of course, be sure not to buy sweetened instant oatmeal. And this recipe works just as well with any of the peanut butter alternatives.

1. In a small microwave-safe bowl, combine the oatmeal, milk and salt. Microwave on high for 1 minute, or until boiling. Allow to cool for 5 minutes, then stir in the peanut butter.

2. In another small bowl, stir together the berries and fruit spread.

3. Spread the peanut butter-oat mixture on one slice of bread and the fruit mixture over it. Top with the second slice of bread.

Peanut Butter S'mores Bars: Sweeter snacking

The point of these Peanut Butter S'mores Bars was to create a simple snack with the flavour of s'mores, but with the texture, ease and portability of puffed rice treats, which the kids could enjoy after school.

You end up with a layer of marshmallow-rich crushed graham crackers topped with chocolate. To make things interesting, you can then turn them into Peanut Butter S'mores Bars by adding (wait for it): peanut butter. If your kids aren't peanut butter inclined, just leave it out.

1. Coat 9-by-9-inch baking pan with cooking spray.

2. In saucepan over medium-low, add butter, marshmallows and peanut butter. Stir until it is completely melted and smooth.

3. Remove pan from heat and add graham cereal and graham crackers. Stir to coat. Using buttered fingers, press mixture into prepared pan. Set aside.

4. In microwave-safe dish, melt chocolate bits by heating in 30-second intervals, and stirring in between. Spread melted chocolate over bars and sprinkle with the peanuts. Allow to cool and then cut into bars.

Author takes a shot at on-campus alcohol abuse policies

After studying student alcohol use for more than 15 years, Auburn University professor Christopher J. Correia is encouraging administrators to take the judgmental sting out of their drinking policies.

reia's latest book — College Student Alcohol Abuse: A Guide to Assessment, Intervention and Prevention — which he hopes will become a new policy model for campuses across the country. "The research firmly points out, repeatedly, that the majority of college students either don't drink at all or drink in a way that most people would consider to be safe and quite moderate," says Correia.

"There are plenty of students with problems, but they don't all have the same problem.

There are short-term problems, perhaps just one particular night, and then there are longer standing problems. We don't serve students well when we try to treat every problem the same way."

Correia co-authored Student Alcohol Abuse with researchers from the University of Memphis and Brown University, along with input from other prominent drug and alcohol analysts.

"It's a public health issue," says Correia. "We

Positive shift

Changes on the horizon

- While alcohol abuse remains a problem, Correia says the situation is improving. "If you look at the numbers of students that engage in binge drinking, or at the numbers of deaths, injuries and accidents, it's hard to be super optimistic. Those numbers have remained fairly stable. However, we are seeing a positive shift: There are more interventions out there that have empirical support. That means administrators can start to have more confidence in their options."

need to move away from abstinence-based, restrictive in-patient solutions, and realize there are lots of other treatment models out there — models that are more reality-based than thinking that college students are never going to drink."

Discovering the best ways to do business in a faraway land

It's no surprise that company cost-cutting puts added pressure on business travellers, but that shouldn't mean compromising on comfort. Take a look at these helpful tips from Days Inns Canada to make your next business trip stress-free:

What to pack

The most important rule for any business traveller is to pack lightly. Be practical and only take items essential to your trip. Review luggage specifications with your carrier and if you do need to check a bag, be sure to have important documents in your carry-on.

Comfort counts

Why not pass on the four-star hotel and go for a two or three-star that provides clean, comfortable rooms, exceptional service and the essential hotel amenities all at a reasonable price? Many hotels offer a free breakfast and most have a fitness room or pool, so you can keep fit on the road.

Almost time for take off? Double-check that you've packed your travel documents along with all those work papers. ISTOCK

Get rewarded

Check with the hotel you're considering to see if they offer a loyalty rewards program designed with the traveller in mind. Look for participating partners and

Rest and relaxation

Enjoy the ride

- When travelling for business, you rarely get to explore your destination. Why not take a couple of extra days at the end of your trip and invite family or friends to join you?
- This way you can take advantage of being in a new location and get some time to relax before going back to the office.

you might earn valuable points or miles on every qualified stay.

Keep in touch

It's a good idea to send your business itinerary to a co-worker, friend or relative, so someone will always know your whereabouts. Be sure to carry a cell phone when travelling alone and of course sending an email from the road to keep people informed is a good idea.

THE IN-CREDIBILITY

life@metronews.ca

In his third year of university, Darren started recipe development for his own brand of beer in a pot on top of his stove. After putting together the necessary financing, Smith opened his brewery in May of 2010 with a staff of four. After two successful years, he now employs 25 people and sales of Lake of Bays Beer have quadrupled.

I knew I was on my way when... we started getting the first round of merchandise with our Lake of Bays logo on them. The night we opened, we went into the local pub in Baysville. Everyone was drinking Lake of Bays beer out of our glassware. It was cool seeing it served to people. We've gone from pale ale to four beers and our aim is to become one of the major players in the beer business, taking our brand across Ontario and eventually across the country.

Action Plan

- Talk to people: As an entrepreneur, it's easy to be filled with enthusiasm to make your idea work. Find people who are in the same business as you and really listen to them. You will benefit when they give you honest feedback on your business plan.

- Do some serious financial sleuthing: See if you can get your hands on the finances of a company that is doing what you want to do. Get an idea of the financial structure of the business and ask them how long it took to get established and profitable.

- Abhor fixed costs: In a new business you're building sales and volume and if you have a lot of fixed expenses, it can be really challenging. If you have to deliver your product, contract another company to do the deliveries and when the sales come you can justify buying your own vehicle.

When even the professor is puzzled

Subject sans-knowledge. Author takes a look at learning from the untaught teacher

life@metronews.ca

While serving as the director of a faculty development centre at Seattle University, Therese Huston noticed a recurrent complaint emerging from professors: "I'm being asked to teach a subject I never studied."

In 2009, Huston authored a self-help manual for profs coping with this dirty little secret of higher education, Teaching What You Don't Know. And, judging by the book's success, it's an all-too-common problem: The second edition will be released this month, and there's already an audio book on the market, perfect for ever-commuting adjuncts.

Education unsure

"It became increasingly clear that one of the most stressful situations was when someone was teaching not just a new course in terms of preparation, but a new course in terms of having to learn new material."

Therese Huston
Director of a faculty development centre at Seattle University

"It became increasingly clear that one of the most stressful situations was when someone was teaching not just a new course in terms of preparation, but a new course in terms of having to learn new material," says Huston. "People were embarrassed to talk about that, but this is when they needed the most help."

Based largely on case studies of 28 professors from a wide range of colleges and universities, Huston tackles the issue from course preparation to final exams. "This is the first book to talk openly about teaching outside of your expertise. Most books assume the opposite. So I had to look at the empirical literature differently to find research that might be relevant."

TASTY AND GREAT PUMPKIN DISHES

ONE NIGHT ONLY AT SAGE RESTAURANT AT THE RIVER CREE RESORT AND CASINO

On the heels of a successful Olive Festival, Sage restaurant at the River

Cree Resort and Casino is proud to bring you the Harvest Pumpkin Festival on Oct. 25.

Enjoy the taste of fall with a pumpkin-themed menu at a restaurant that truly brings you a real dining experience.

"Sage restaurant is a premier dining facility that allows guests to come in and experience excellent service, great ambiance, an outstanding wine list and, more importantly, incredible food," says Cam Rutten, business development at River Cree.

Each month, the culinary team at Sage creates a special menu around one particular item. This month, the item that will be featured is the pumpkin during the Harvest Pumpkin Festival.

Throughout the five-course meal, the delicious flavour of pumpkin will be highlighted in each dish.

"This is a great chance to try the food at Sage and experience the talent of the chef and his team," Rutten says.

Chef Christophe Ithurritze (@sagechristophe) and his team work together to create a lasting dining experience for guests.

"At Sage, you can have an intimate dinner, a great night with a bunch of friends or a business meeting," Rutten says.

"Guests are welcomed into the restaurant filled with energy and excitement. Once seated in Sage you can have a few different dining options, whatever you choose you will be treated to incredible service from some of Edmonton's best servers working hard to make your experience perfect every time."

The Harvest Pumpkin Festival is one night only, so reserve your seat at [rivercree resort.com](http://rivercree resort.com) or by calling 780-930-2636.

Sage offers customers an exciting menu six days a week with the average price per person about $60, while a three-course menu is also available for $52.

Daily specials are also available.

Sage is open Tuesday to Sunday and guests must be older than 18.

HarvestPumpkinfestival October 25

NHL's Daly says CBA framework is in place

Time is running short to save a full NHL season.

But with just days remaining to strike a new collective bargaining agreement and preserve an 82-game schedule, deputy commissioner Bill Daly indicated that he felt there was a deal to be made.

Asked on Sunday whether there was a chance for the sides to get something in place by Thursday's deadline, Daly responded by saying, "That's more of a question for the union than it is for me."

"We think there's a framework of a deal on the table," he added.

It's the same conclusion a number of observers reached after watching the league and NHL Players' Association move closer together in proposals delivered over the last week.

At worst, they remain about $550 million US apart in the division of revenue over a five-year deal — depending on which of the union's three proposals is used and at what rate the business ends up growing. They could be separated by as little as $320 million.

The NHLPA has shown a willingness to get to the league's desired 50-50 split of revenues over the course of the deal, but wants to ensure all current contracts are honoured in full. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ryan Vogelsong and the San Francisco Giants saved their season once more, pushing St. Louis to a winner-take-all Game 7 in the National League championship series.

Turns out the defending champion Cardinals aren't the only team that's tough to put away in October.

Vogelsong struck out a career-best nine batters in another post-season gem, and the Giants avoided elimination for a second straight

The Giants have won five straight games this post-season when facing elimination.

Game 3, won by the Cardinals. There's a forecast of rain in the Bay Area during the day.

"It's kind of a joke in the clubhouse. About 60 per cent of my games have rain in the forecast," Lohse said. "I know these guys, I've seen them for six games. I know what I need to do.... It's time to get it done."

These wild-card Cardinals sure seem to like the all-or-nothing route in October, while San Francisco thrives playing from behind.

Now, it comes down to one game for the past two World Series champions to get back, with the Detroit Tigers waiting.

Pitching to chants of "Vogey! Vogey!" from the sell-out crowd of 43,070 at AT&T Park, the right-hander didn't allow a hit until Daniel Descalso's broken-bat single to centre with two outs in the fifth. Vogelsong struck out the side in the first and had already fanned five through two innings.

"This place is going to be loud, I can tell you that," Vogelsong said of Monday night. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NFL. Manning one-ups Washington rookie RG3

While Robert Griffin III is quickly becoming the NFL's most exciting quarterback, there's none better than Eli Manning with the game on the line.

Manning one-upped the Washington Redskins' rookie sensation with a pinpoint 77-yard scoring pass to Victor Cruz with 1:13 to play and the New York Giants overcame a late touchdown toss by Griffin to defeat the Washington Redskins 27-23 on Sunday.

The winning drive was the 22nd of Manning's career in either the fourth quarter or

Boyd returning to Edmonton after 10-day CFL hiatus

The Edmonton Eskimos are bringing back Cory Boyd.

The CFL club announced on Sunday that it had re-signed the running back after releasing him on Oct. 11.

The Eskimos say they are bringing Boyd back into the fold because of an injury to fellow running back Hugh Charles.

"We are unsure of Hugh Charles' availability due to the injury he sustained in Friday's game," Eskimos head coach Kavis Reed said in a statement. "As a precaution, we are bringing in Cory who already knows our system."

Boyd originally joined the Eskimos after being released by the Toronto Argonauts in August.

The 27-year-old played four games with Edmonton, registering a modest 18 carries for 76 yards and four catches for 40 yards.

When Boyd was released from Toronto, he was the league's leading rusher with 80 carries for 447 yards and two touchdowns. He also hauled in 23 passes for 70 yards and two touchdowns.

Horoscopes

Aries

March 21 - April 20

The odds may have been against you of late, but you refused to give up and you will soon reap the rewards. Today, you should make it a priority to patch things up with people with whom you've fallen out.

Taurus

April 21 - May 21

The Sun's change of sign tomorrow will give you the chance to help other people, but you have got to be realistic and accept that you cannot help everyone. Do what you can when and where the opportunity arises.

Gemini

May 22 - June 21

Start winding things down a little. You have been moving at top speed for quite a while so now you need to balance things out and give both your body and your mind time to recover. They need it.

Cancer

June 22 - July 23

You need to resolve a family issue that has been causing you sleepless nights, and you need to resolve it now. As of tomorrow, you won't find it so easy to talk to loved ones — nor will you have the time.

Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

No doubt you have a lot to say for yourself — as always — and no doubt it is well worth listening to. But don't hog the conversation today. Let others have their say. You may be surprised how much you learn.

Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

You still have time to sort out a problem that has been bugging you but you have got to be quick. If you leave it much longer it will cause you more than just anguish. It will also cost you some serious money.

Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

It may seem as if time is running out, but there is no point rushing to catch up because you will only make mistakes. What's done is done and cannot be undone. It is time to move on.

Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

One of the most difficult phases of the year is coming to an end and by this time tomorrow, it will feel as if a great weight has been lifted from your shoulders. Maybe it has or maybe it was never really there.

Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

As usual, you have been taking risks and cutting corners, and you have largely gotten away with it. However, the Sun's change of signs tomorrow means you need to tread carefully from now on.

Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

What seemed like a setback last week will now reveal itself to be a blessing in disguise, so don't feel too upset if you were denied something you desired. And stop worrying what the future will bring. It's all good.

Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

If you define your goals clearly over the next 24 hours, you will be given the chance to realize them before the year comes to an end. Ignore what other people expect of you. Do only what feels right to you.

Pisces

Feb. 20 - March 20

You are coming to the end of a difficult phase, but you have to admit that the lessons it taught you were valuable, maybe priceless. Here's another one: Don't overreact and do anything stupid. SALLY BROMPTON
